

Vladimir Philogène

SPEAKER | FILMMAKER | ENTREPRENEUR | CREATIVE VISIONARY

Vladimir Philogène is a filmmaker, entrepreneur, and visionary who knows what it means to lose your footing in life and find the strength to rebuild everything from the ground up.

His journey has been anything but conventional. Behind his years of experience, creative accomplishments, and entrepreneurial ventures is a story of personal adversity, difficult decisions, and the determination to keep moving forward when the future was far from certain.

There was a time when Vladimir had to start over with very little. A time when the people around him didn't necessarily see what he saw, when encouragement was scarce, and when believing in himself was sometimes the only support he could count on. Rather than allowing those circumstances to define his future, he chose to build one through persistence, discipline, and an unwavering commitment to his vision.

With nearly two decades of experience in filmmaking, photography, and creative production, Vladimir has built a career around storytelling, leadership, and bringing ambitious ideas to life. His work has taken him through the realities of the entertainment industry, from directing and producing to managing creative teams, developing businesses, and creating opportunities for others.

As the founder of Five Star House, a creative production studio in Montreal, and Destinaytion, an independent entertainment and streaming platform, Vladimir has turned his experience into something greater than personal achievement. Both ventures reflect his belief in ownership, creative independence, and the importance of building opportunities rather than waiting for someone else to provide them.

But his perspective extends far beyond business and filmmaking.

Having experienced the meaning of uncertainty, navigate setbacks, rebuild confidence, and pursue a vision without guaranteed support, Vladimir brings a deeply personal understanding of resilience, self-leadership, entrepreneurship, and the courage required to reinvent yourself.

As a speaker, he bridges the worlds of personal transformation and entrepreneurship, challenging audiences to reconsider how they approach adversity, ambition, failure, and success. His message is rooted not in theories of motivation, but in lived experience and the practical lessons that come from building something meaningful through real obstacles.

He speaks to entrepreneurs, creatives, emerging leaders, and individuals navigating their own turning points, reminding them that circumstances may influence where we begin, but they do not have to determine where we end up.

Success is more than what we accomplish. It's about who you become through everything it takes to get there.